PARAKEET SAVES BENTON WOMAN FROM SNAKE BITE

BENTON, III. (AP) — Mrs. Lorene Sheiton of Macedonia credits her parakeet with saving her from a snake bite. She said she placed the bird on a stool in her bedroom doorway Wednesday and then took a nap. A short time later the bird began talking. She moved the bird but he remained frightened. Then she noticed a snake behind the bedroom curtains, just a foot and a half from the bed. Mrs. Shelton got a spade, pinned the snake and later measured it at 31 inches.

Bulk of the increase is represented by the boost from 3-to 4 cents in the one ounce vate for first-class mail. It would account for $295,700,000 of the total annual revenue increase. In addition, the bill also would raise the rate on air-mail letters from 6 to 7 cents.

Second-class mail rates applicable to newspapers and other commercial publications would increase over a five-year period to a total of $44,500,000. At the end of that period the total increase would be approximately 30 per cent on the reading portion of the publications and 120 per cent on its advertising.

Federal Administration circles were reported convinced the walkout would not be of record breaking length, but one source predicted "it will go at least three weeks" before settlement is reached.

Action in Doubt.

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)
—Stamped with House approval, a bill to increase postal rates $430,100,100 a year was ready today for delivery to the Senate. Whether it will be readdressed there to the White House was anyone's guess.

One top-ranking member of the Senate Post Office Committee predicted privately the bill would be routed into the Senate in 1952—also an election year—overrode objections of its committee and voted to boost first-class and air-mail rates by the same increase—one cent—provided in the pending bill. The 1952 proposal died in the House.

LONDON, July 7 — Prime Minister Rehru of India gently reproved two high United States officials yesterday for having suggested that the policy of "neutralism" verged on international "immorality."

Accounting for this would be a boost in the individual piece rate from 2 to 3 cents for the first two ounces plus an increase in the minimum rate for "junk" or bulk mailings from 10 to 12 cents a pound and 1½ to 2 cents a piece.

Books, catalogs and other postal matter would be subject to smaller increases.

The House made only one change in the bill as it came from committee. It accepted a proposal by Representative William M. Colmer (Dem.), Mississippi, to exempt newspapers sippi, to exempt newspapers with circulations of less than 5000 from any increase in their mail charge.

A foreign-made pistol, with six discharged shells, was found in the street near the truck. Witnesses told police the first shot was fired from the truck at a woman walking in the 1400 block of Franklin. The bullet narrowly missed its mark. Raymond was shot as he walked in the 1600 block of Franklin.

Reversing the Ticket

REVERSING THE LICKET
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I am for Adlai Stevenson. But if I can't have him and must take a ticket of Eisenhower and Nixon, let me offer a few words of advice.
I like President Eisenhower. I detest Richard Nixon. If we must have a ticket embracing Eisenhower and Nixon, make it Nixon for President and Eisenhower for Vice President.

Let's face facts. The presidency cannot be filled by an old man who is also unwell. The White House needs a man active not only physically but also mentally—one who has an active hand on the helm and an attentive and searching eye on the ball.

And that active hand and attentive and searching eye is just what President Eisenhower is not providing. In good health he lacks that healthy human curiosity about the functioning of governmental agencies that a President must have to stay atop his job. And with his years (65 usually brings retirement in business, government and the armed services), and his poor health (God forgive his medicine men), what can we look forward to for the next four years but a rudderless Ship of State?

Now (with a shiver) let's talk of Dick Nixon. With all his faults, and they are legion, he would make an active President. He is young and ambitious, he would not delegate power and authority right and left as has been done these last few years. I will take a poor President who is on the job, in preference to a good man (not good President) who is unable to function.

And in the vice presidency, Mr. Eisenhower is far superior to Mr. Nixon as a good will ambassador to all the world. That is a job he can fill superlatively well. He is the ideal man to travel about the world elling and demonstrating the story of American good will and friendliness to all mankind.

Let's give Mr. Eisenhower, of whom we are all proud, a horse he can ride.

Priority on Parking

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
What is the logic behind all of the to-do about whether we acquire ground and build 1400 off-street parking spaces in downtown St. when apparently nothing is being done by the city to counter the prospective loss of 4000 spaces on the riverfront? The easements in the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial grant-ed by the Federal Government for permanent parking facilities are to the City of St. Louis. This privilege will go by default if not used. With some action by St. Louis now necessary to take advantage of this certain right, any approach to down-town problems that does not start with making permanent the parking on the riverfront shows something less than good judgment.

Low Level Politics

It has been a long time since a lower chapter resentatives than that which spelled out the Partisan politics was in full play and the vic-tims—unless the defeat is reversed—are hundreds of thousands of school children who will be cheated in the years ahead.

There were two votes of prime importance and it is necessary to see how the parties divided on these rollcalls in order to fix responsi-bility for this blow to the prestige of President Eisenhower and to assess the possibility for correction before the present session ends.

The first significant rollcall was on the amendment of Representative Adam Clayton Powell, New York Democrat, to withhold federal aid from any states that fail to "comply with the decisions of the United States Supreme Court." This amendment sought to link school aid to desegregation in public education.

On this President Eisenhower took a sound position. His stand was: pass the school aid bill and deal with any failure to apply funds according to the Supreme Court desegregation decision when and if it arises in the federal

Yet here is the way the Republicans and Democrats in the House lined up on the Powell amendment:

FOR AGAINST 77 146 148 46 RIA 225 192

Thus the Democrats supported President Eisenhower's position by a ratio of 2 to 1, while the Republicans went against Mr. Eisenhower more than 3 to 1. What kind of G.O.P. support of the President is this?

The division makes clear that the Republican House members readily ignored Mr. Eisenhow er's wishes in their desire to tack on an amend ment that would be objected to in the South. They played politics with school needs in the hope of winning some Negro votes in the Northern cities.

Then when the roll was called on final passage the membership divided as follows:

AGAINST 103 Democrats Republicans 194 224

What happened is only too plain. The Repub licans seized on the excuse that they did not like the House formula for allotting the proposed grants on a school-age-population basis rather than according to the "needs" of each state. After voting in the Powell amendment, they switched around and voted against the bill overwhelmingly. The Democrats, on the other hand, notwithstanding the dislike for the Powell amendment in the South, still cast a clear majority for the bill.

Had only a few more Republicans voted on the side of President Eisenhower, the bill would now be on its way to the Senate, where the Powell amendment might well have been taken out. That would have opened the way for a settlement of differences between the chambers.

It is to be hoped that President Eisenhower's recovery will proceed rapidly enough to permit him to take an active hand in the fight. least he can do is to call in Republican House Martin of Massachusetts and Assistant Leader Halleck of Indiana and tell them is blunt language what he thinks about the G.O.P. disservice to the boys and girls of the United

How the States Can Help One of the important an political questions that helped justify the recent Conference of Governors concerns the responsibilities of state overnments to their metropolitan districts.

There are now more than 170 recognized metropolitan districts in the nation, and in them lives about 56 per cent of our total population. The majority of these areas, including that centered on St. Louis, are suffering serious growing pains. And since this growth is still far from its peak-witness the wide open spaces still aining in St. Louis county-metropolitan problems if left unattended are sure to become

The question then is not whether the states have a duty to help local governments meet the needs of their people. They certainly have. Rather, it is: What can the states do for the people of the metropolitan district? Missouri's answer has been more or less to permit the metropolitan areas to shift for themselves.

The Bi-State Development Agency, for exam ple, has enjoyed strong support from the Illinois Legislature but in Jefferson City it has experienced a legislative cold shoulder. Failure of the Missouri Legislature adequately to out the agency's powers has made it difficult for Bi-State to market its bonds, and this has seriously crippled its potential for good.

Missouri will begin next year with a new Gov ernor and a new Legislature. All the candidates for the Governor's chair ought to pledge strong leadership in providing solutions to the problems of the state's metropolitan areas, and they ought to do it in the primary campaign.

Adenauer's Troubled Victory

Even though he was in Rome, the strong personality of Chancellor Adenauer carried the nighly unpopular conscription law through the Bundestag and, in all probability, the measure will now be ratified by the less representative Bundesrat, the appointed upper branch of the Bonn parliament.

The Chancellor's triumph, however, is not as reassuring as it might be. The bill was watered down so much that supplementary legislation on such details as the term of service is neces sary. And no less than 202 members of the 487 the Bundestag walked out on the voting after a bitter debate in which Adenauer was called "more American than the Americans." Even some supporters of the bill pointed out how un popular it is, citing not only the political opposition of the Social Democrats, the Free Demo crats and the Refugee party, but also that of the youth groups and the Evangelical church. Adenauer was supported primarily cause the Christian Democrats did not want to repudiate him with national elections less than a year away. In view of the recent decline of much support for Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano or any other possible successor to Chancellor, his partisans continue to pin their hopes to Dr. Adenauer, now beyond his eightieth birthday. This vote-consciousness was further shown by enactment of a sweeping tax cut hard ly in conformity with Germany's economic posi tion, not to mention the new expense of rearma But they expressed their apprehension when the opposition announced that conscrip tion would be made an election issue. If this were merely a matter of German internal politics, the Germans alone could be left to worry about it. Unhappily it is part and parcel of the growing pressure to have the Bonn government take reunification out of the hands of the Western governments and to make stronger direct overtures to Moscow than those made so far. It is also part and parcel of European wavering about NATO and the desire of some of its members to de-emphasize the military aspects of this grand alliance of the West. Thus it is another sign of a diplomatic crisis in the making. Russian diplomacy has capitalized the changing mood. But Washington has only repeated out-dated statements. Surely the solidarity of the West is worth something more imaginative and realistic than a posture of "wait

Dispel the Air Power Fog

The confusion over the Senate inquiry Into Soviet Russian and United States military air strength, which began when Secretary of Defense Wilson took the witness chair, has been unded since Gen. Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff, returned from his visit to Moscow. Secretary Wilson's testimony on the optimistic side largely contradicted that of three of his air chiefs who had pointed to serious weaknesses in our air strength. As we have said before, the fog over the air power debate assuredly needed to be dispelled.

Unfortunately Gen. Twining has now com pounded the confusion. He had testified before the Symington subcommittee that the Soviets were "ahead" In "numbers of aircraft and combat units" with "thousands more combat air-planes than we" and "are now closing the quality But at a news conference immediately after his meeting Thursday with President Eisenhower he expressed his opinions on the same of the airpower subject in such a manner that it conveyed the impression he was hedging

Senator Jackson of Washington, who has been a leading figure in the investigation being carby the Symington subcommittee, puts the whole matter in the proverbial nutshell. He says Gen. Twining will have to clarify whether he is changing or hedging some of his previous testimony. It is to be hoped that Gen. Twining will not have too much trouble in clearing up this part of the confusion.

There also remains the discrepancy between the B-52 production program and the number of the intercontinental jet bombers that are placed in operation. They are supposed to be rolling off the line and into Air Force hangars at the rate of 20 a month, according to Defense Department figures, but are actually coming off in dribbles of three and four.

Nothing has been said by Secretary Wilson that refutes the straightforward testimony of Trevor Gardner, who resigned as an Assistant Secretary of the Air Force for Research and Development, and made it clear that the United States was lagging in its research and development. Mere numbers of bombers, ships or men do not tell the full story but the rate of research and development affords an index as to which country is going to hold the technological lead.

If the current investigation leads to clarification on these points it will have accomplished something of vital importance.

Experts at Work on Transit

Experts finally are to be turned loose on the St. Louis area's transit-traffic problems. Just about the last hurdle in the way of a start on this wital work has been cleared in St. Louis county The Council has authorized the county's participation in the project with St. Louis and the Missouri State Highway Commission. A New engineering firm will do the actual work. The happy prospect now is for a calculated, scientific assault on the problem of how to move people and vehicles rapidly in and out of the metropolitan area. Experts soon will be at work on what may very well be the area's most pressing local concern. After all this long waiting, the news is almost too good to be true.

$4,000,000,000 and a Hat

An unnecessary piece of trouble has been encountered by the second Hoover Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government. A working unit of the commission contends four billion dollars a year can be saved by putting into effect recommendations it makes as to accounting practices.

Chairman Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee maintains the figure has been used to "glamorize" the recommendations. And Director of the Budget Brundage says "quite frankly" that "I would rather not express an opinion on either the computation or how they got it." In other words, the four-billion-dollar figure was picked out of the same hat the glamorizers are now talking through.

The first Hoover commission, though it did a workmanlike job where the second is doing doctrinaire one, made the same needless misof juggling figures to give its proposals popular appeal. The Senate Committee on Government Operations, to which the first commission's reports were referred, administered a stinging rebuke on this score. It called the claims of savings "not based on fact" and "extravagant," declared they created "confusion," and condemned them as "grossly unfair to the

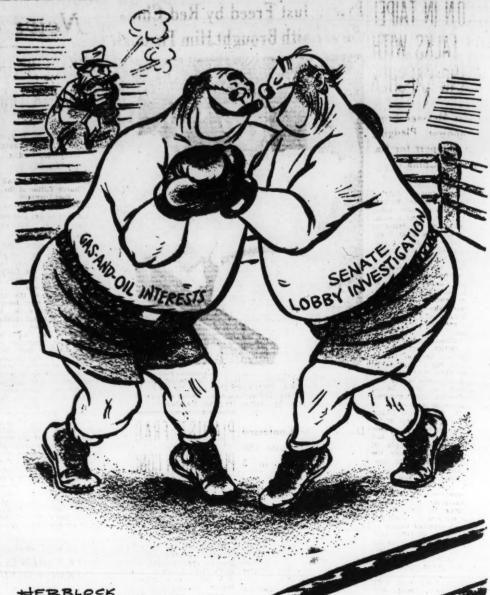

In view of that earlier rebuke, it is surprising to see a second commission, likewise under the chairmanship of former President Hoover, committing the same gratuitous mistake all over again. A sounder approach to economy in gov ernment is that of Bradley D. Nash and Cornelius Lynde in their booklength report on the first Hoover commission, A Hook in Leviathan, They wrote:

It is well for the critic of government to understand precisely what is meant by eco-nomical or efficient government. Economical government should be synonymous with

And effective government will need no glam orizing to win popular approval. Its virtues will be easily recognizable in people's daily lives.

Memo to the Postoffice Department It appears that the new $5,880,000 administra-tion building at Lambert-St. Louis Field is not quite the last word in airport terminals. For relatively small room in this vast and imposing grand central station of the airways is not air conditioned although 45 to 50 postal workers frequently work themselves into a lather there in getting out the mail. If they open the door, nearby planes blow the room full of dirt and exhaust gases. Postal inspectors looked in but it is feared that it may be two years before conditions are alleviated. Just recently the Post Office Department announced it was spending thousands of dollars for stamp vending machines with metallic voices that automatically and unfeelingly intone "thank you" to every purchaser. Surely the Department could lay a few hundred dollars on the barrel head right now for a bit of air-conditioning that would bring some spontaneous and fervent thanks from 45 or 50

Exploding atoms emit a smell, but the bushmen of the Kalahari desert in Bechuanaland are about the only people who can detect, it. Because of this faculty, the tribesmen down Okovanggo way are being given important jobs in the South African gold mining industry, where the yellow metal is mixed with uranium in the ore.

The bushmen serve as "reef pickers" along the conveyor belts used for mechanical sorting in the mines. They have the most highly developed perceptive faculty in the world as a result of their environment, where life depends on finding water and an ability to track game over sand.

Sorting reef (shale) is child's play for them, and Geiger counters at the end of the belts show that virtually not a scrap of ore is wasted.

Boom in Consumer Debt

Customers' purchases had previously been divided about equally between sales for eash and sales on time. At the climax of the selling drive last summer, about three cars out of four mmer, about three cars out of rou

ilment debt on automobiles bal
oned by almost four billion dollars. Here is how the dealer situation developed in Charlottesville, Va., a town of about 30,000.

In 1955 there were 10 dealers there. In 1955 there were 10 dealers there. For the five years before 1955, their combined sales averaged about 1550 new cars a year. In those years, selling had again become part of the business—customers weren't standing in line as they had been just after the war. But the competition was easy-going

Last season was different. Factory representatives turned up on the premises of each dealer at least twice a week, bringing bright new ideas on how he could boost one section or another of his business—new-car sales, used-car sales, and even the service and accessory departments.

Threats to Cajolery

At the beginning of the model year and through the summer, the factories' line was fough: Take more cars, or give up your contract. Toward the end of the model year, veiled threats were succeeded by cajolery: Take just 11 more cars, and if you have to, register them in the names of your employes until you can find buyers.

Everybody cut way below list price in order to clinch deals. The distributor whose over-all operations showed a 1955 before-tax profit of $100 per new car sold during the year did better than most of his competitors.

This symphony, though a staple

His playing in the first movement, however, suggested that he missed the serious import of the musical ideas he was dealing with, for it was a little too bland and sweet-tempered. The wide-eyed innocence of the slow movement, on the other hand, was wholly plausible, as was the blithe and cheerful finale. The orchestra supplied a tactful accompaniment by shaping the character of its performance to that of the soloist. # Clouting Klu Spares His Legs, Rides on Cardinals' Pitching

Home Run Lets Reds Walkin Too, 6-4

By Bob Broeg Of the Post-Dispatch Staff. CINCINNATI, July 7 — Ted.

Kluszewski, whose spring-time sciatica bid fair for a time to rival Babe Ruth's famous bellyache a generation ago, has begun to hit his stride, meaning he hasn't had to run much lately. When Cincinnati's firse-base When Cincinnati's firse-base behemoth is handling his bat as nimbly as though it was a drum major's baton, the diminished aches and pains of his career-threatening allment are even less noticeable. As he explained it before last night's game with the Cardinals at Crosley Field: "There's one thing about a home run. You can take it nice and easy soing around the easy going around

Big Klu has been taking it nice and easy, all right, on himself, that is, and not enemy pitchers. With the good-natured giant now swinging the most devastating of the many Redleg giant now swinging the most devastating of the many Redleg bats, sheer power has carried Cincinnati to the top of the National League. The free-swinging Rhinelanders knocked off the Cardinals last night, 6 to 4.

Birds Down to .500.

The Redbirds' defeat, dropping them back to .500 for the first time since April 23, resulted largely from the heavy hitting of Kluszewski, the guy whose muscles even have muscles and the most impressive hunk of humanity to display bare arms on the diamond since Jimmy Foxx.

Big Klu drove in four runs with his twenty-first homer, which tied Chicago's Ernie Banks for the National League lead, and an outfield fly. The aerial sacrifice came off little lefthander Don Liddle, disappointing a third time in a Redbird uniform. It was the homer, though, that did the damage.

Tom Poholsky, the St. Louis starter, owned a 3-2 lead into the last of the fifth when Kluszewski came up with two on and two out. He drove a pitch over the right centerfield screen for Cincinnati's 113th homer in 73 games. If the Redlegs don't smash the Giants' major league record of 221 circuit drives, a standard set in 1947, it won't be because of the 31-year-old slugger.

Birdie's Spring Song.

Kluszewski, who hit 40, 49 and start because of his sciatica, which didn't hurt Manager impatiently about Klu's lack of condition and even benched him.

"I knew," he said, "we had to get Klu back in there."
The sciatica still bothers Klus-The sciatica still bothers Kluszewski at times—even forced him out of last Sunday's second game at St. Louis—but he's swinging freely now, and it's a fearsome sight to behold. In the last 14 games he has batted .351 and knocked in 18 runs with nine homers. Seven of those fence-busting blows, including four off the Cardinals, have come in Cincy's last six contests.

And Big Klu is happier even than Tebbetts. The way he's hitting now, he doesn't have to do too much painful running.

In tonight's second game of the series Wilmer (8-6) Mizell and Righthander Johnny (7-4). Klippstein probably will be the opposing pitchers. The Cards now have lost six of their last seven games and 16 of 24.

The Redlegs finished with 10 hits off four St. Louis pitchers while the Redbirds had nine off lefty Don Gross, the winner, and replacement Hershell (Buster) Freeman.

Ray Jablonski, rested for six games because his batting average had dropped to .238, returned to the Cincy lineup and drove in the first run with a second-inning triple. . . . Gross, who beat the Cardinals last Sunday 7 to 1, in his first start since his recall from Havana, issued his first walk in 15 innings in the third and didn't give up another pass. . . . Don Blasingame, twice hitting in the pinch, and Alvin Dark drove in two runs apiece for the Red-birds. . . . Ed Bailey, the Reds'

INDIANAPOLIS, July 7 (AP)

The Indianapolis Indians, who started the season playing afternoon home-games on three days of the week, said they will limit daylight play to Sundays for the remainder of the season.

Owen Bush, president of the community-owned American Association club, said Wednesday games will be shifted from afternoon to night play.

Bush said the change was made because fans complained about mid-week afternoon games conflicting with their working hours and in light of a 10,937 season record crowd at Wednesday night's fourth of July doubleheader.

Previously Saturday games were shifted from afternoon to night so that the major league "game of the day" could be televised in the Indianapolis Jail

PETER THOMSON of Australia holds prize cup after capturing the British Open golf championship by shooting a 72-hole total of 286 over the Hoylake, England, course. The British have taken Thomson to their hearts and many experts on this side of the Atlantic think he'll join the great names in the history of golf before he drops his putter for the last time.

Norman Von Nida, the fiery little Aussie who guided Thomson to golfing glory, doesn't say Thomson is as good a golfer as Hoglan—yet.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch
HARTFORD, Conn., July 7—
Senator Albert Gore of Tennessee, keynoting the Connecticut Democratic state convention last night, called the Eisenhower Administration a "fall-behind" regime which, if continued for four more years, would be "disastrous" for the United States and the free world.

Although Gore said the President's health should not properly be a campaign issue, hused it himself to bolster an argument-that the President is a part-time leader in times of exceme crisis.

"For the lack of virile and aggressive leadership," Gore said, "the United States is falling behind in atomic power, falling behind in atomic power, falling behind in airr power, falling behind in atomic power, falling behind in intercontinental ballistic missiles, falling behind in intercontinental ballistic missiles, falling behind in atomic power, falling behind in ato

—The State Department has begun an investigation into the alleged efforts of two more Soviet officials in this country to pressure Russian refugees into returning home, it was disclosed yesterday. Senator Eastland (Dem.), Mississippi, chairman of the Senate Internal Security Committee, said he had asked the department last month to inquire into the activities of Rostielav Shapovalov and Aleksei Petukhov, both Soviet officials attached to the United Nations. Eastland, in making public a reply from the State Department, cited testimony received by the subcommittee from Michael Shatov, a Russian refugee living in New York, to the effect that the two men had tried to pressure him into returning to the Soviet Union.

Facing death, rebel General Bacut (Cut Finger) appeals in vain to court martial which sentenced him at Cantho, South Viet Nam. Death sentence returned Thursday by the court was the third to be imposed against Bacut, who cut off the finger on his mutilated hand as a mark of his hatred of France in the eight-year Indochina war.

ROCKY END TO VOYAGE

Only 65 miles, from its goal, the yawl Silver Spray lies battered on rocky California coast after almost completing its run from Hawaii. The 51-foot craft left Honolulu June 2 and was nearing harbor when heavy seas and winds drove it off course and onto the rocks 65 miles northwest of San Francisco. The skipper, Oluf E. Winger of Long Island, N. Y., and two crew members escaped before the craft was destroyed.

The British are giving up their bases on Ceylon at the demand of Prime Minister Solomon Bandaranaike, who advocates a policy of neutrality between the East and the West.

Britain, if deprived of all facilities in Ceylon, would be without a base between Aden and Singapore, a stretch of 3600 miles. The air base is particularly needed for flying jet planes to the Far East.

In Singapore, Royal Air Force sources said Britain had turned over an air base to India. Under the plan, six British radar and navigational experts will remain to man instruments.

British sources said if both the Nicobar and Ceylon airfields were made unavailable to the Royal Air Force it would have to move jet planes to the Far East by sea. The Independent Elector group headed by Clarence

Mrs. Marion R. Cleveland, executive director of the plan, said the move will give "all conservatives" a chance to vote for a ticket "to their liking instead of taking "the lesser of two evils." To get its candidates on the Nov. 6 Illinois ballot, the organization will need the signatures of 25,000 voters.

DESOTO (MO.) MAN HUNTED
IN KILLING IS FOUND DEAD

The body of Donald Mercille, of DeSoto, Mo., who had been sought for the killing of an 18-year-old girl at a Washington county dance hall, was found yesterday in a wooded area near Potosi. A shotgun was by his side. He was 24 years old. State patrolmen discovered the body after it had been sighted by an observer in a pairol plane.

The shotgun, police said, was the weapon used to kill Della Mae Miller, of Cadet, last Wednesday. She was shot while seated with another man in a dance hall on State Highway 47 after she had declined an invitation from Mercille to escort her home.

AYBE you can help me. I am really puzzled. I have been going steady with a boy for several months. My mother and dad really did like this boy. I liked him but I wasn't in love with him and I planned that our going together was just kid stuff. Several days ago I gave him back his ring and told him I like him for a friend but I didn't think that we should go steady. My mother was really mad. She will hardly speak to me. I am not permitted to go anywhere. Honestly, Martha, I am just 16, and I feel it's my life and I am just beginning to live it. I don't want to be tied down. Was I right?

This is certainly a switch. Usually, I hear complaints that a girl's parents won't let her go with a certain boy. But I can't imagine why your mother would want you to go steady with someone you really don't care much about. If he's the son of family friends and she feels you might have offended his parents, that's one thing. But I must agree, if I'm interpreting all the facts right, that you should have the right to refuse to go steady if you wish.

I AM A GIRL of 14 and I really do like a boy. We have been going out very often and I think he likes me a little. My parents like him too. But he is 19 and his mother doesn't think he should go out with young girls. Do you think five years' difference in age is too much? How can we convince his mom that 14 is not too young?

I think the concern should be the other way around that at 14 you're too young to be going with a 19-year-old boy. His mother is right in preferring that he date girls in his own age group and I think you would be wise to stick to a younger crowd. Sorry that I can't give you any help in convincing Mom because I happen to think she's right.

I think you already know my ideas about going steady. Certainly, it's a convenience if it's the kind of agreement that always means a date. But my objection is that it keeps girls from having a chance to know and go with a number of boys, which is important when they are forming their ideas of the kind of person they hope to marry some Too, someone is usually hurt in the break-up, and unfortunately, that someone is usually the girl. NY young working woman who has dated a man steadily for a year and hasn't received even a hint about marriage is just wasting her time.

A 27-year-old woman who has given a 36-year-old bachelor a year of her time and doesn't feel any nearer to the altar than she did a year ago wants to know how long it ought to take a man to get around to proposing mar-

Not any longer than this bachelor has already had. If the girl is really in love with him she may not want to break off their friendship.

But she certainly RUTH MILLETT shouldn't let him take up all of her time. She ought to start dating other men. And furthermore, she should let him know there are others she is interested in and are interested in her.

A bachelor who thinks he has a girl's undivided attention may not see any reason for bringing up the subject of loyalty, her flattery and attention all the while he is holding on to his own freedom. In his mind, he is probably sitting pretty. Why should he bother taking on the responsibilities of marriage when he is getting so much for so little?

But if he suddenly sees that he can't take up all of a girl's evenings indefinitely, he may start to think of marriage as a means of having her all to himself.

Lots of young women waste their most marriageable years on men who feel so sure of them that they don't ever get around to marriage talk.

It's a mighty foolish thing for any young woman to do. Her unspoken attitude ought to be: "If you want to be the one-and-only man in my life, then you'd better start looking at wedding rings."

WHAT about some more suggestions for hearty supper salads?" asks a reader. She goes on to say I have mentioned potato salad and rice salad, but have not said a word about using macaroni as a base.

A very good salad can be made with macaroni, but it needs even more careful seasoning than do others. Perhaps this is because of its texture. First of all, be sure not to overcook the macaroni and to drain it and rinse thoroughly with cold water before re-draining. For this particular salad, both French dressing and mayonnaise are often used, and a slightly more generous portion than with other salads. More flavor will be added if chopped ham, corned beef or liver spread is used. One recipe that calls for corned beef suggests adding peas and whole kernel corn. This salad would be a full meal in itself.

MANY TEEN-AGERS write me about the agony of being shy. Many outgrow their shyness, just as they outgrow the awkwardness of the growing stage. But other people remain shy all their lives.

Oddly enough, although shyness is a trial to the individual who suffers from it, it is rarely a social drawback. Today's world particularly is so full of aggressive people that the few quiet, shy ones often are eminently attractive socially.

floor at once in a social gathering.

The shy individual protects himself with his shyness. Agressive persons look at him and see that there is literally nothing to "knock down." And often he makes the socially aggressive person feel more important, more appreciated. This is certainly social success for the shy one. To be beautiful, you must first eliminate the negative, then accentuate the positive. Stated concretely, this means soap before cosmetics, bath before bouquet.

An aura of perfume is a lovely thing, but only as an added fillip. Don't ever let yourself you count on it too much. If you have just five minutes, spend it on a refreshing, soapy shower. If you have 10 minute spend it on a tub bath: if more on a leisurely soak. After the bath, of course, enjoy a fine spray of your favorite perfume. Now you've earned it.

The same rule, on a smaller scale, applies to facial cosmetics, which must never be a cover-up but a make-up. Never catch yourself applying even a touch of new foundation to old. Always make it a case of com-plete off-with-the-old before onwith - the - new. Remember that when you wash away old makeup thoroughly, it allows your complexion a breather, a chance complexion a breather, a chance to be itself for a moment. You make available to your skin the cleanliness and fresh air that are sources of invigoration. It repays you with the added beauty of a softness and natural bloom that can only come from its being basically clean.

You wouldn't press a dress.

You wouldn't press a dress that was spotted or soiled, because it wouldn't look fresh, and because the fabric might be injured. The same idea applies to complexion care.

St. Louis Health Commissioner

St. Louis Health Commissioner

Summertime is picnic time. Picnics are fun but sometimes sanitary precautions in food preparation are neglected, or facilities for refrigeration are poor or lacking, and the result is food poisoning.

The most common type of food poisoning is caused by staphylococcus germs—germs usually found in skin infections, particularly of the hands. It is very explosive in its effects, invariably causing severe vomiting and diarrhea within a matter of one to two hours after the ingestion of contaminated food.

Foods most commonly found to be the offender in hot weather are ham, poultry, pastries and puddings containing milk and eggs, and salads made from meat, fish and potatoes. Follow these simple precautions and enjoy your picnic:

Persons suffering from festering cuts, pimples, boils, head

tions and enjoy your picnic:
Persons suffering from festering cuts, pimples, boils, head colds, diarrhea or "summer complaint" should never assist in the preparation of food.
Refrigerator temperatures about 50 degrees F. are dangerous for food storage. Prechill a camp refrigerator overnight. Never put food into a warm box. Most camp boxes are too small to hold enough ice to bring the temperature low enough for safe storage. If this is your problem a small piece of dry ice may be used with the wet ice. Don't handle dry ice with bare hands — it may lead to dangerous burns. Hot or warm food that is to be kept for any length of time must be cooled to below 50 degrees F. as rapidly as possible. Usual thorough cooking virtually destroys all disease producing bacteria carried by insects and rodents or by hands, coughs or sneezes of the cook. But if just one bacteria is left and the cooked food allowed to stand at room temperature and the cooked food allowed to stand at room temperature this lonely bacteria will multiply so rapidly that in even an hour or two the food may be harmful to eat. There will be no change in appearance, taste or odor to act as a warning. WEEKLY REPORT OF MAJOR COMMUNICABLE DISEASES

THE recent airplane tragedy over the Grand Canyon dramatically points up the fact that human failure and coincidence rarely can be accounted for.

We probably should have realized long ago that, with increased air travel, we should make a more careful study of the co-ordination of aircraft control.

And there still is the coincidence factor, which must have amounted to a matter of seconds in bringing these two planes together at the same spot at the same time.

Edward Holland, a guard at made independent attempts to buy the paper in recent weeks.

After the meeting it was learned that Fox had set forth

The prisoner, Theodore Wood of 3126 Maury avenue, who had been confined at the Workhouse since June 29 working off a $125 traffic fine, had walked away from the institution three hours before Holland spotted him. Wood was one of a group of 12 trustees assigned to an outdoor garden detail at the time he escaped.

Holland said he was at Chippewa street and South Kings-

S EVERAL boys and girls have asked me questions about the tides.

Q. Does the moon really work on the ocean tides?

A. Yes, indeed. The moon and the sun are the only heavenly objects which influence that an hour past midnight, and the sun are the only heavenly objects which influence the tides in an important way. Venus, Jupiter and other planets have a tiny influence, but this is so small that it hardly counts.

The moon has more influence on the tides than the sun. That may be hard to understand because the sun is much larger and heavier.

The sun does have many times as much gravity pull on the entire earth as the moon, but the story is different in regard to ocean water. The moon lifts ocean water two and one fourth times as much as the sun.

Q. How often do high ecean tides occur?
